the 1990s, the number of people with a diagnosis of schizophrenia has increased in the United Kingdom (Meltzer 1996). The prevalence of schizophrenia in the United Kingdom is estimated to be 1.2% (Meltzer 1996).

There is a growing awareness of the need to improve the lives of people with a diagnosis of schizophrenia. The United Kingdom has a number of government departments and agencies that are responsible for the care of people with a diagnosis of schizophrenia. The Department of Health is responsible for the overall policy and strategy for the care of people with a diagnosis of schizophrenia. The Department of Social Security is responsible for the provision of financial support to people with a diagnosis of schizophrenia. The Home Office is responsible for the provision of accommodation and support to people with a diagnosis of schizophrenia.

Academics proved to be a diversified field, but specialization often captured many schedules.

Time was precious. The active, flying from one meeting to another, rounded their personalities and practiced the art of compatibility.

Muscles were strengthened as was the character of athletes participating in the sports program offered to those willing to give of themselves.

Each person was alone in some respects and prepared to live a satisfying life.

Accenting the hours of classtime activity were the free moments to pause, exert, or enjoy.

Frustration was often overbearing, but the guidance of ones who had passed that way before smoothed out the wrinkles.

The necessity to make a notable mark impressed an unconscious goal on the minds of the conscientious.

In order not to have thoughts always on the Viet Nam situation and to make amends for the reputation some teenagers brought to our generation, there had to be times to unwind.

Fridays seemed too infrequent and vacations too far away, while pep sessions and general assemblies broke the daily schedule.

English teachers impress self expression upon students in writing, oral discussions

Through creative writing, drills involving grammatical structure spelling, and public speaking, students strive for a workable knowledge of the English language.

Prior to this year, literature study had been limited almost entirely to Anglo-American works.

Word literature was offered this year to acquaint students with literature outside the English-American sphere of influence.

This combination of ideas and beliefs gained from the study of literature presented the student with a field of contrasting beliefs which were useful in pursuing either further education or immediate employment.

Miss June Calen, B.A., Huntington College; English, Spanish. Mrs. Katherine Coffman, B.A., University of Wisconsin; French. Mr. Reid Lewis, B.A., University of Illinois, University of Paris; French.

In order to understand cultural habits of various French provinces, students find pleasure in singing famous ballads.

Linguists seek cultural knowledge, enlarge vocabularies

Comparing French and American customs created a lively atmosphere in the French classes. The advanced class planned a dinner which was prepared by the class members. Participating in the University of Illinois' French Day, students heard speakers discuss topics concerning French.

Spanish classes concentrated mainly on South American Spanish and its culture. First year students were introduced to ALM and concentrated primarily on dialogues and grammar. Studying geography, history, art, and literature of Spain, the advanced classes broadened their understanding of the Spanish people.

ALM equipment stresses proficiency in conversation and comprehension of French. Mastering the pronunciation of difficult words are third year students Michelle Guenette, Ken Schultz, Jim Roberts, and Mary Brock.

Miss Katharine Swartz, A.B., Manchester College; M.A., Northwestern University; English, Latin. Miss Joan Taylor, B.A., Purdue University; Spanish.

Latest foreign language equipment imports new teaching styles

Headphones in place and microphones turned on, language students furthered their fluency in conversation with the Audio Lingual Method (ALM). By learning basic language patterns, students were able to adapt to new situations using these patterns.

First year Latin classes concentrated on learning fundamental language structure and life in Rome. Caesar and the Gaelic Wars and advanced grammar were studied by second year. Virgil's Aeneid and Cicero's Orations created a stimulating atmosphere in advanced classes. The annual Roman banquet, highlighted by a wedding, climaxed the year.

After lighting the incense, John Ewens asks the house gods to bless the wedding which is about to take place.

Solving logical problems and inciting thinking on the student's part was the object of the mathematics department in a three year program.

To start the wheel in motion, geometry, concerned with deductive and inductive reasoning, was offered to the sophomores as they worked with theorems, postulates, and axioms.

Business math gave the student a firm footing in the financial world and advanced algebra was devoted to trigonometric, logarithmic, and exponential functions and explorations with polynomials.

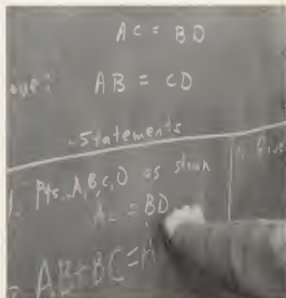

A more thorough extension of algebra is afforded to senior math students while a fifth year math course, calculus, challenges the students to understand the higher and more difficult concepts of math.

Striving for successful completion of his difficult advanced algebra test, Steve Lett carefully analyzes a problem.

Physics, biology chemistry arouse interest in exciting complicated fields

Sophomores discovered the world of science through varied studies in the field of biology. They unveiled many of the intricacies of organic matter with dissections and microscope observations. The major problem, how to remove the smell of formaldehyde from hands and clothes, continued to perplex many students.

Pungent odors in the halls made it obvious when chemistry students were busy in lab. Lab work acquainted students with the concepts of matter, its composition, and its weight.

The ever-present challenges of physics were multiplied by attempts to disprove the laws of gravity by proving theories concerning the relationship of matter and energy.

Before dissecting a frog, Dennis Barnett and Johnnie Duykers examine live specimens in Biology class.

Mr. Charles Bowman, B.S., M.A., Ball State University; Advanced Biology, Biology, U.S. History. Mr. Robert Conard, B.S., Indiana University; Algebra, Chemistry. Mr. Darwin Kinney, A.B., Indiana University; General Biology.

Mr. Malcolm Ruby, B.A., Earlham College; Chemistry. Mr. Leonard Saylor, A.B., DePauw University; Algebra, Calculus, Physics.

Mr. David Schaeffer, B.S., M.S., Indiana State University; Biology. Mr. Charles Smead, B.S., M.S., Purdue University; Biology, General Biology.

Social Sciences search into environmental effects, processes of government

Mr. Dennis Conley, B.S., Eastern Illinois University; Economics, U.S. History. Mrs. Doris Dunn, B.S., Indiana University; M.S., Northwestern, Civics-Economics, Speech, World Affairs. Mr. Alfred Gruber, B.S., M.S., Ball State University; Geography, U.S. History.

Participation in field trips, mock governments and group discussions gave social studies students the opportunity to learn from observations the functions and activities of the government.

Reporting the "Man of the Week" in U.S. History classes kept juniors up to date with current news personalities and events. In "E" history classes, research was done to fulfill collateral requirements. Seniors examined the fundamentals of working governments in civics and economics.

Sociology and psychology gave students a new outlook on the individual and his reactions. Reading maps and writing reports on countries kept the geography classes busy throughout the year.

Advantages of the American colonists during the Revolutionary War are listed on the board by Lon Van Denburgh.

Mr. William Kimble, B.S., Indiana University; Civics, Economics. Mrs. Laura Likens, B.A., Valparaiso University, Western Reserve University; U.S. History.

Mr. Harold Miller, B.S., Ball State University; Psychology, Sociology. Mr. Donald Revere, B.A., Wabash College; Civics, Economics, World History.

Mr. Richard Webb, B.S., M.A., Ball State University; Pan American College; U.S. History. Mrs. Cornelia Wood, B.S., M.A., Ball State University; U.S. History.

Above: Discussing work conditions, students dispute differences between the labor and management in economic classes. Below: In geography, Mr. Gruber explains the fundamentals of finding latitude and longitude on maps.

Gathering facts, Linda Lytle concentrates on important events, while studying for an upcoming civics test.

Band, choral concerts obtain appreciation of school, community patrons

Developing the comprehensive student was the aim of the music department. Appreciation was stressed through careful selection of material and techniques used in presentation.

A rigorous summer schedule augmented the band's school year activities. Winter brought concentrated effort in concert entertainment as the band prepared for concerts, assemblies and the NISBOVA contests.

The vocal department grew through the development of several specialized groups. The folk singing group, "The Live and in Color," performed for community civic groups. The A Cappella presented its first Guest Artist Concert in the spring.

Art enthusiasts apply imagination; business teaches fundamentals of office work

Due to the increased number of student artists and their ability to flexibly work with various mediums, the project of hosting the first art show was successfully undertaken. Projects about the elements of composition, Oriental and Renaissance art were emphasized.

Bookkeeping classes put the student in the position of a bookkeeper of a small firm, where he was asked to take care of the books as if the situation were authentic. Timed writings and typing to music kept typing students on their toes, while shorthand students learned the Gregg Theory. Commercial law and salesmanship classes chose products and sold them to the class.

Basketweaving, an age old art, is a new unit in art classes. Fascinated by this craft, Val Stahl weaves a fruit basket.

Mr. Jerry Caravana, B.S., Ball State University; Bookkeeping, Typing. Miss Mary Erickson, B.F.A., University of Illinois; Advanced Art, Arts and Crafts.

Mr. Jerry Flood, B.S., Indiana University; Business English, Commercial Law, Typing. Miss Irene Jamieson, B.S., Indiana State University; Shorthand, Typing.

Mr. William Naylor, B.A., M.A., Ball State University; Business Machines. Miss Terese Sasso, B.S., Indiana State University; Shorthand, Typing.

Under the instruction of Mr. Naylor, Linda Dillner operates a VeriType, one of the machines that works with the offset.

Above: Making precise brush strokes, Jeff Hammett fulfills the requirements of advanced art with the completion of an art project. Below: Mr. Caravanna shows Tom Haniford the correct way to balance figures in a business record.

Extensive work and discussion of farm animals and crops occupied agriculture class members. Activities also included crop identification and soil work. To gather more insight in practical application, work with the greenhouse became a major project.

Interest in the convenience of operating an automobile caused driver's education to have one of the highest enrollment figures ever. Thought-provoking movies illustrated defensive driving to the students. Checking motors and changing tires were taught outside the classroom. Practice driving was highlighted with a chance for students to drive on the freeways.

Land judging, one of the main projects undertaken by agriculture classes, taught the boys to recognize good and bad soil. Showing Alan Dewes crop eroded soil, George Shipley explains the problems of this kind of soil.

Calculating how much corn should be planted per acre, Rich Cleveland uses the adding machine for precise computations.

Making a leaf collection was one of the requirements for advanced agriculture. Dave Baum, Dennis Wentz, and Dave Logan work to complete their project to perfection.

Mr. Leon Dean, B.S., M.S., Purdue University; Agriculture, Driver Education. Mr. James Everroad, B.S., Indiana University; Civics, Driver Education. Mr. Richard Stillwagon, B.S., M.S., Purdue University; Driver Education, General Biology.

Home ec, shop courses encourage student inventiveness at home, work

Creating fashions and constructing three-dimensional floor plans for interior decorating were projects undertaken by home ec. students.

In May, a style show featured ensembles made by the students which were judged by teachers from other schools. Along with foreign cooking, which proved to be the most popular phase of the foods course, girls also studied First Aid and Child Care.

Two-hour classes in technical and architectural drawing allowed far more concentrated study in these courses. A study of mass production filled the time in machine shop, while visiting the steel mills and studying the practical uses of welding were the main concerns of the welders.

Skillfully using the drill press to cut wood into various pieces for a cabinet are Darl Creager and Paul York.

Putting around with cars is a favorite pastime for many boys. Seniors Earl Haskell and Don Card show their ability to repair a car motor which was brought to school to be worked on for class credit.

Mrs. Paula Adams, B.S., Indiana State University; Beginning Clothing, Interior Design. Mrs. Janice Blevins, B.S., Ball State University; Foods, Tailoring. Mrs. Tennessee Sendak, B.S., North Texas State University; Family Living, Primary Foods.

Trying to master the correct technique of pinning pattern pieces on the material is Linda Dillner.

Mr. Joseph Heuer, B.S., Purdue University; M.S., Indiana State University; Architectural, Mechanical Drawing. Mr. Donald Kyes, B.S., Ball State University; Machine Shop.

Mr. Martin Malizzo, B.S., Ball State University; Drafting, Electricity, Sheet Metal. Mr. Michael Nikolic, B.S., M.S., Indiana State University; Auto Mechanics, Welding.

Mr. John Shipley, B.S., Ball State University; Mechanical Drawing, Welding, Wood Shop. Mr. Richard Wood, B.S., M.S., Ball State University; Wood Working.

P.E. instructors stress basic rules, sportsmanship in athletic events

P.E. classes were introduced to co-ed volleyball and basketball and sports appreciation, which covered sports impossible to do in regular classes. A pilot program tried in one class stressed reading and neuromuscular co-ordination to improve academic skills. Physical fitness tests were given in the fall and spring to recognize outstanding students.

Health classes studied the anatomy and physiology of the human body. The Red Cross First Aid Course and the Mother's Aid Course prepared the students for an emergency situation. While discussing brain injury and birth defects, the students were given a chance to work with Kathy Keller, a cerebral palsy victim.

Inquiry, conversation, creativity mold student character

Some days just started out bad but the industrious student sought to overcome any depression. On the days that were more promising tests seemed easier and friends more responsive.

Life continued for each person individually. Organizations continued to thrive on participation but each hour of the day found students engaged in another class room atmosphere or with another thought foremost in mind.

At times it was necessary to pause and remember precisely what was to be done. When an assignment or favor was forgotten everyone tried harder the next time to make amends and eventually have a good day.

Opportunities to accomplish something of merit and personal satisfaction took many hours and gave the patient ones an end result of which they could be proud.

Hours of concentration often were demonstrated in a single contest that lasted a matter of minutes. After the tension was relieved the knowledge or talent still remained to one's advantage.

Being satisfied to a point just shy of conceit often served as the ticket to success. No feeling ever replaced the glow that came at the moment of achievement.

Variety of intramural games challenges students during lunch hours

High spirit and strained muscles were apparent in the heated inter-class competition in crab soccer, tug-of-war, and track events. For those students participating in intramural activities, noon hours passed quickly without thought of boredom.

A wide variety of table games took place at the intramural counter. Tournaments in chess and checkers posed a challenge to many minds, and pocket golf increased coordination.

Designed to give the non-varsity athletes a chance to participate in organized sports, the intramural program provided round-robin basketball tournaments, as well as badminton, baseball, and tennis competition.

AFS Committee extends Hoosier hospitality to Johannesburg resident

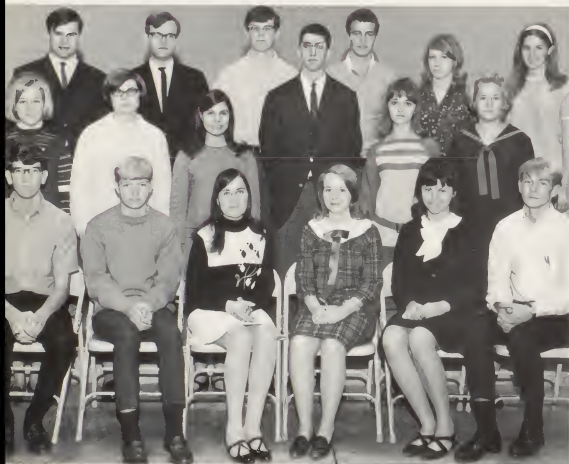

Preparations were made by the Moneys during the last few weeks of summer to welcome Yvonne Marcus as a new member of the family.

Having completed one semester at the University of Witwatersrand, Yvonne readily adapted to school life at Crown Point High School.

Spending the summer in Saugau, Germany broadened Marcia Juskevics's interest in the American Field Service Committee. Activities of the AFS Committee started out with a dinner where Yvonne showed slides of South Africa to committee members. An excursion to Chicago to see "Gone With the Wind" provided cultural entertainment. In order to raise some funds, they held several successful noon hour bake sales.

Two productions, “The Miracle Worker” and “Tom Jones”, exhibited the theatrical prowess of the class of '68. Both, directed by Mr. Marion Kellum, seemed suited to the talents of the students.

Struggling against the world of darkness that surrounded her, a blind-deaf girl was the main character in “The Miracle Worker”. Fantastically elaborate sets were built contributing in making this one of the most successful school plays.

An English farce set in the eighteenth century was the theme for “Tom Jones”. Although the main staff was composed of seniors, underclassmen were allowed to audition for smaller parts. An innovation in lieu of class plays was a 16 mm color pantomimed film.

Though the burning embers died away, the spirit aroused by the bonfire still remained. As the human snake uncoiled, the Bulldog boosters edged toward the field to watch the anxious female athletes display their skill at football in the traditional GAA Powderpuff game.

The enthusiasm swelled even more in the following day as girls in rollers and boys in faded jeans and sweatshirts worked diligently to finish the cars of the various organizations for the parade.

Although trailing in the first half of the game, the Bulldogs bounced back after half time entertainment by the band and the crowning of queen Joy Zieseniss to defeat the Griffith Panthers. "Onward To Victory" made a very appropriate theme for the Homecoming dance.

Last year, spring dances were highlighted by a "Wonderland of Roses" and the coronation of Jeanne Van Slyke as Rose Queen.

Janet Smith and Ron Quale reigned as '67 prom queen and king.

The joint efforts of Sunshine and H1-Y unfolded into a lovely "Enchanted Evening". Susan Jollief was chosen as H1-Y Sweetheart.

Christmas was more meaningful for Judi Terwilliger as she was crowned queen at the annual Holly Hop.

At the yearly FFA banquet, Debbie Wood was honored with the title of FFA Sweetheart.

As the music played the dancers turned slowly to enjoy the atmosphere created by the intricate decorations placed by the junior class. The theme of Cinderella's Ball was typified well by an original coach and an eighty foot mural done in perspective.

Highlighting the evening was the crowning of Janet Smith and Ron Quale as royalty for the remaining portion of the evening.

Following the whirl of final exams and senior week, graduates returned to the gymnasium for Baccalaureate and commencement services.

A hand shake and the ceremonious movement of the tassels marked the end to twelve years of schooling.

Pent up emotions were given a chance to explode into the bounding spirit that backed the Bulldogs throughout the entire year. From the need to express these emotions students thought, cheered, cried, and laughed both together and alone.

Leadership and responsibility combined with relaxing fun offered the members experience essential to the future of maturing students. Lasting friendships developed by work accomplished through group co-operation rather than that of individual efforts.

standing committees

Five standing committees were used this year in the Student Council in an attempt to gain greater efficiency. The Office and Concession Stand committees consisted of all the Council members, while the Ways and Means, Public Relation, and Safe Driving committees required individual attention.

A newly revised handbook was available for the incoming sophomores on orientation day. Juniors and seniors received the book during the first few days of the new school year.

The Council again sponsored the annual leadership conference, which was attended by all club officers, cheerleaders, and key members of the publications staffs. Members also continued the tradition set by previous councils of heightening the Christmas spirit at CPHS by decorating the halls and sponsoring a special assembly.

Proceeds from the concession stand were used in various ways. AFS candidate Marcia Juskevics trip was partially financed by the Student Council, and a new microphone system was installed in the community building.

Kathy Loomis serves Amanda Lewis from the Student Council concession stand during a basketball game. The Council also runs the stand during noon hours and after school.

Honorary clubs laud outstanding students

National Honor Society induction is a proud moment for Joe Kacmar as he accepts his certificate of membership from 1966-67 president Zane Swanson.

Nationwide groups have been established to honor high school students. Rotarians and Kiwanians, National Honor Society, and Quill and Scroll members have been chosen for their accomplishments in various fields.

Twenty-five senior boys were chosen as Junior Rotarians or Kiwanians to represent an activity in which they were participating. Selected by the administration, the boys attended meetings of the Rotary or Kiwanis for one month to better understand functions and services of these clubs. After this time each boy delivered a speech concerning his respective field.

National Honor Society members were chosen in the spring by the faculty. Five per cent of the junior class and an additional ten per cent of the senior class were initiated. As well as sponsoring several parties for honor students and graduate NHS members, the Society again participated in the Channel 11 educational television fund drive.

Composing an active journalistic chapter, Quill and Scroll members were elected throughout the year, rather than the previous manner of one induction in the spring, on the basis of their accomplishments on the Inklings or Excalibur staffs.

Students throughout the state and nation have been recognized for scholastic excellence and outstanding achievements. Recognition has come to Crown Point High School students in the form of scholarships and honorary awards.

Interest in governmental structures and procedures was encouraged by the Hoosier Girls' and Boys' State programs, at which seven students represented Crown Point High School. Chosen through a teacher-student interview, the representatives attended a summer session at Indiana University, where the main objective was to promote Americanism. Activities included campaigning for offices in a mock government, visits from state dignitaries, and classes in government.

DAR Good Citizen Jewell Everett was selected as one of three finalists by a vote of the entire senior class. The slate was then presented to the faculty, who based their selection on Jewell's qualities of dependability, leadership, service and patriotism.

National Merit semi-finalists were tested and graded on a nationwide scale, their scores falling in the upper two per cent.

Jeanne Miller, the Betty Crocker Scholarship Winner, received a local scholarship and went on to be tested in statewide competition.

Classes raise funds to support activities

Duties and responsibilities of each class rested heavily on the shoulders of its officers, who were elected by the members of their class in the spring.

As commencement neared, senior class officers selected robe colors and announcement styles. They were also in charge of choosing the location for the annual senior class party. These activities were partially financed by the production of "Tom Jones," the senior class play.

Prom plans were the main topic of discussion for the junior class and their officers. At football games, the junior stand bustled with industrious juniors serving hungry spectators. This, along with the junior class play, and class dues, covered the bulk of the prom expenses.

Upon entering high school, the sophomores were plagued with the problems of learning to adjust to a larger school and deciding what the teachers expected from them. One enjoyable problem was the selection of class rings. They selected two styles rather than the usual one. A choice could be made of either college or traditional style rings.

Linguists supplement cultural knowledge

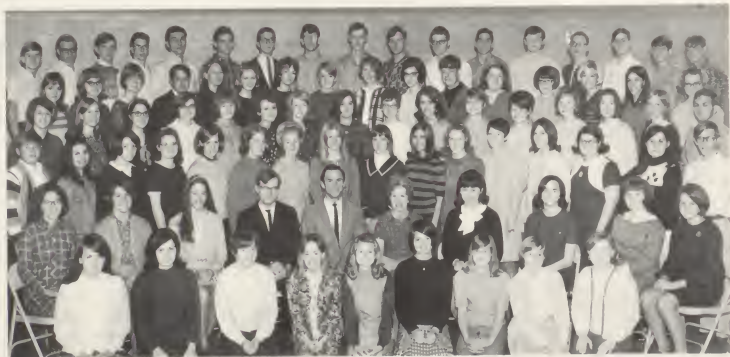

Preparing to enjoy the Latin Banquet, Debbie Graves and Laura Powers admire their Roman attire. Slaves served at the banquet which was attended by upperclassmen.

Envisioning the ancient Roman architecture, hearing the shouts of "Olé" in the Bullring and gazing at slides of the magnificent chateaux in France set the atmosphere for the Junior Classical League, La Sociedad Lingüística de Español, and Le Cercle Français.

The three clubs again spent the year steeping themselves in the customs and cultures of their various countries. Representative cultural exhibits provided an excellent excuse for field trips. On its annual excursion the Spanish Club saw "The Man of La Mancha" in Chicago, while the French Club traveled to Indiana University to see Pantomimist Marcel Marceau.

Each club had a party which stressed some special part of their country's cultural heritage. The Latin banquet emphasized Roman attire and entertainment, while the French dinner and Spanish fiesta placed the main importance on cultural cuisine.

For the first time an Honors Abroad program was offered to Latin students. Representing Crown Point was Warren Johnson, one of twelve students chosen from Indiana to go to Italy. For the second time students traveled to France on the Students Abroad program under the auspices of Mr. Reid Lewis.

Imaginative students focus attention on chess,

Participation in various clubs provided activities for leisure moments and, for some, competition and practice in their chosen profession.

In an attempt to increase student interest in creative expression, the Art Club sponsored an art contest for students only. Members also traveled to the Chicago Art Museum several times throughout the year to see special exhibits.

Speech and Debate Club members alternated between speech meets and debates on Tuesday nights. As a member of the National Forensic League, the club took part in the Purdue Student Legislative Assembly.

Thespians participating in Drama Club encouraged interest in theatrical productions. "Tom Jones," the senior class play, was aided by Drama Club members not only in acting, but in make-up application and lighting techniques as well.

The challenge of the "game of kings" captured the curiosity of Chess Club members. Since the membership included both students and faculty, the competition enhanced improvement. Their annual tournament was opened to all students.

A-V, Biology, Library clubs stress utility

To test her blood type, Laura Powers must prick Marla Long's finger. Looking on are Diane Veach, Dan Frame and Greg Claussen, junior Biology Club members.

Further interest in Biology was satisfied by outdoor field trips and occasional movies after school. Projects were constructed for the elementary classes. Snakes and turtles were gathered for the purpose of exhibiting live animals to the children.

Recreational fun was enjoyed by the members of the club at a variety of gatherings. A swim party was held during the winter while a picnic marked the end of the year.

Practical experience was gained by girls interested in a career in library science. An important asset to the school library, the student helpers aided the steady flow of students who use the facilities.

Similarly, the Audio-Visual club provided a necessary service to the school. Operating the audio-visual equipment was only one phase of their job. Time was spent cleaning and repairing machinery to increase the capacity of each to run. Organization of film schedules assured to teachers that the desired equipment would be delivered on the required date without further inquiry on the part of the teacher.

FFA, FHA, FTA prepare for tomorrow

As a member of District I, the Crown Point Chapter of the FFA hosted the District Contest for the first time. As Director of this district, it was the responsibility of Dennis Lorenz to organize this contest. Boys were judged on demonstrations, crops and exhibits, with the winners competing at the State contest in June.

Members of the FTA were given an insight into the varied facets of teaching, by programs and visitation periods provided. Members also were able to teach classes on the morning of the May Breakfast. Points earned in these capacities were used to receive the FTA pin and patch.

At the end of each year a deserving member of the club who is entering the field of teaching receives a scholarship. Club members raise the funds for this project by working in the concession stand at the basketball games.

Activities of the FHA included the annual mother-daughter tea at Christmas time and a fashion show in which girls from the Home Ec department modeled the clothes which they made in class.

Funds for these activities were provided by selling fruitcakes throughout November and December.

Future Farmers Dennis Lorenz, president of FFA, Jerry Ross and George Zieseness assemble a farm project for an exhibition to illustrate the cost of farming.

“Others” proves appropriate SSS motto

Assembling decorations for the Sunshine-Hi-Y semi-formal on the morning of the dance, Debbie Bish attaches a flower to a tree placed in the entrance-way.

With a six per cent increase in membership, the Sunshine Society broadened the scope of its activities through the enthusiasm of the incoming sophomores and older members. People from the eastern United States to South America received assistance.

The annual gift to the Riley's Emergency Fund was provided by the most profitable candy sale ever. Over three tons of clothing, a record amount, was collected through the joint efforts of the SSS and Hi-Y members. A unanimous decision was made to adopt a needy child. Victor Quipsey, who is from Bolivia, will be supported from year to year.

Responsibility was placed on individual members through the addition of various committees. The Favor and SOS committees made small gifts for teachers and shut-ins, while another was established to take care of semi-annual payments and correspondence with the adopted child.

Sunshine Society also undertook projects for the school and community. By continuing the tradition of the Ideal Lady program, members were given an opportunity to extend their appreciation to women who have influenced their lives. After the final open social event, the Rose Dance, preparations began for the annual May Breakfast, where new officers were installed and outstanding members were commended for their work throughout the year.

Hi-Y, Lettermen assist school, community

Hi-Y combines efforts with the Sunshine Society for Bundle Day. Mike Conquest, Bob Verboon and Fred Kolscheen fill bags with collected articles for needy families.

This year the Hi-Y began a program of greater participation in various school activities. Joining forces with the Sunshine Society, the Hi-Y worked at the annual clothing drive, sending the bundles to needy families in Appalachia. The two clubs sponsored the Sunshine-Hi-Y semi-formal.

Hi-Y boys also helped park cars at all the home football and basketball games. Points for participating in these activities were used to achieve the Hi-Y letter and pin.

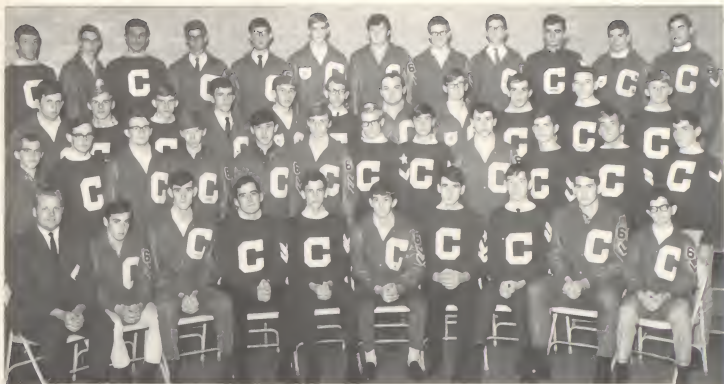

A common sight in our school's halls, the Lettermen jacket proudly displays the wearer's accomplishments and sets him apart as a successful participant in varsity athletics. The Lettermen Club strives to promote school spirit and set an example for the entire student body.

Far from being solely an honorary organization, the Lettermen participated in many activities. The C-men sold advertisements for the basketball and football programs, and ran the concession stand at home basketball games. A banquet honoring all the senior Lettermen ended the year.

GAA, Booster Club introduce traditions

"Pick up your picket sign and revolt," was the motto of the 67-68 GAA. The old constitution and rules were thrown out and new ones introduced. Even the traditional officer induction ceremony was replaced by a more modern one in which the incoming officers were presented with picket signs.

Starting the GAA's year of revolution was the Coffee House. This featured Marjo, a folk singer from the Cellar in Gary, as well as other groups composed of student and faculty members.

The next activity following the Coffee House was the second annual Powder Puff football game. Homecoming "Mr. Football" candidates from the varsity team served as cheerleaders.

Booster Club members provided encouragement for both major and minor team sports. To promote spirit, large posters covered the rec room halls, appropriate signs drew attention to the players' lockers, and window exhibits depicted the various sports in the uptown businesses.

Working to display school spirit, the Booster block was open to any CPHS girl. Booster Club members also organized fan buses to support the various teams in their athletic attempts.

Summer practice sessions are a must for Dorothy, Amanda, Judi and Joy to brush up on old cheers and keep each other posted on new ideas and routines.

Practicing a victory salute are Junior Varsity cheerleaders Sandy Smead, Johnnie Duykers, Dana Shults and Roberta Ligda.

Diligent work of cheer

Selection of the 1967-68 cheerleading squads was approached in a different manner from years past. The Junior Varsity squad was made up entirely of sophomores, while only juniors and seniors were eligible for the Varsity squad.

Both squads were chosen in the spring by the student body to give them time to work together during the summer making up new cheers and learning to function as a team. Twice weekly practice sessions were continued throughout the school year.

During the football season the honor of Homecoming Queen Candidates was bestowed on the three senior members of the Varsity Squad. This gave the JV's a fine opportunity to perform for a major varsity game. Captain Joy Zieseniss took the crown.

The main job of cheerleaders was to promote school spirit and lead the Booster Block, which was formed early in the year. Several pep sessions were planned to arouse spirit and wish good luck to the teams before an important game. For these sessions the cheerleaders had to improvise skits and short catchy cheers which would appeal to the students.

Making its debut, the 1967 A Cappella set the stage for the coming events at the annual fall Preview.

In December the choir and the symphonic band jointly presented the annual Christmas concert. The Madrigals and Swing Choir, who specialize in Renaissance and popular music respectively, were also featured at this concert. As in years past, the A Cappella caroled through the school halls at Christmas time to put everyone in the holiday spirit. The rest homes in the area were also visited by the choir before they finished the calendar year with a party at an A Cappella member's home.

After-school time was necessary for the choir and director, Miss Karen Cowman, to polish the music to be used for the concerts and competitions. The Madrigals and Swing Choir also set aside several nights a week to be devoted to music.

The choir also provided its own musical selections at the Thanksgiving, Christmas, and Easter religious convocations.

For the first time the choral department sponsored a Guest Artist concert, featuring the University of Missouri singers.

To prepare for the A Cappella Preview, Susan Gessner practices the selection for the concert in class. The hours spent in practice are necessary to achieve perfection.

Lord Brockhorst, Dave Allen, an energetic old Englishman, ogles passing young French girls dressed for the beach during a brief interlude when his wife is not present.

As Tony, Pete White, helps Polly, Karen Henderlong, pick up a package, the first sign of love appears, setting the scene for the rest of the musical.

"Boyfriend" revives bygone flapper era

"The Boyfriend", an hilarious take-off on the Roaring Twenties, was an entirely different type musical from those presented in the past. While past humorous musicals have been situation comedies, the humor in this was derived from recreating a particular era. Set in a French boarding school on the Riviera, the story was centered around four young ladies from the school, their boyfriends, and their headmistress.

Miss Karen Cowman, director of the choral department, felt that 1967 would be the best year to produce this particular musical. All fifteen roles could be termed "leads," and there were so many talented students that she knew all the parts could be well cast.

In order for the dances scheduled in the musical to do justice to the songs and lines which the cast had worked on so painstakingly, a choreographer was engaged to work out the routines.

Members of the cast were not the only hard workers. A backstage crew composed of A Cappella members and other students worked with the cast to establish the right techniques in make-up and lighting while the set crew labored to make unusual abstract-type scenery. The idea behind the scenery was to distort the dimensions of an object, thus drawing attention to it and eliminating the need for more detail.

Costumed for the masquerade ball, the cast swings into one of the many colorful dance numbers which added excitement to the musical and set the pace for "The Boyfriend."

Nancy Cantrell as headmistress Madame Dubonnet rekindles the flame of a past adventure with Mike Drake as Percival Browne when they rendezvous by the sea.

Visiting the French Riviera, Kathy Schmelter as Dulcie, Dan Meyer as Alphonse, and Rick Money as Marcel romp in the sand while they soak up the rays of the sun.

Hortense, Cindy Morgan, a lively French maid with a mind of her own, proved a trial to her employer, Madame Dubonnet, and a friend to every girl in the school.

Cadettes, drum majors complement shows

With the glitter of finely polished batons and the snap of brightly colored shakers, the cadets and twirlers proudly preceded the band in precision routines lead by drum majors Ted Pearce and Charley Cox.

Having marched with the band when it received first and second places in '65 and '66, both boys were able to exchange ideas and routines with other drum majors when they attended the Smith-Walbridge drum major camp during the summer.

Old cut-offs and enthusiasm were seen as the cadets practiced long hours to perfect their routines for parades, football and basketball half-time shows. Poise, attitude, attractiveness, and co-ordination were observed in the selection of the girls.

Continually in the limelight, feature twirler Michele Tagg performed her routines with smooth effortlessness. Having captured state championship for three years in a row, she attended the Grand National Championship in Washington D.C., placing sixth.

Helping create various steps and routines, Michele worked with the high school twirling corps during the summer. Excellent as individual twirlers, the all-sophomore squad had to work hard to co-ordinate their team action and routines.

Award winning twirler Michele Tagg heads the band during the marching season. She has been feature twirler for four years.

Unpolished horns, dirty shoes, and sunglasses were the tools of the marching band during the long summer practice sessions which were necessary to maintain the traditionally high degree of excellence.

On the Fourth of July, the band, under the direction of Mr. Joseph Guth, competed in Milwaukee with bands from all over the United States. A week later they placed 7th out of a field of 150 at the Lion's International Parade in Chicago.

Mid-summer, Mr. Albert Castronovo assumed the position of director of the band. Under his direction, the band began the fall marching program, entertaining football fans with their performances as well as contributing to the Valparaiso University Homecoming festivities.

Six students attended various clinics, representing Crown Point at both Indiana and Purdue Universities. Two cadets attended a clinic at Vincennes University. By attending these clinics, the band members and cadets acquired new techniques in concert and marching band.

When the football season ended, the band returned to the bandroom where concert music prevailed. Symphonic skill and artistry were evident in the music presented at the Pop, Christmas, and Guest Artist concerts. Band members competed in the NISBOVA solo and ensemble contest.

The Dance and Dixieland bands also played at the concerts, as well as playing for local social and service community organizations. In the spring, the Dance Band took to the road to provide music for various prom activities throughout the state.

At a weekly Dance Band rehearsal, John Isley works to perfect the alto saxophone solo in "Harlem Nocturne" in preparation for one of the spring prom engagements.

Inklings staffers strive for total coverage

With a desire to gain in depth news coverage, Inklings staff members displayed their creative talents by writing features, columns, expanded sports articles, and by taking better quality pictures.

Planning ahead had to be the basis behind every edition. In order to produce a weekly paper, preparations started well in advance and the present was viewed as the past.

Basic decisions were made by head staffers while attending summer institutes. Techniques and styles were perfected to make the end product satisfactory. Assignments were posted eight days prior to publication so that copy would be in Wednesday for editing. Work was then placed in the hands of the editors for page layouts and headlines. Corrections on galleys and final touches on page proofs were made before the presses started to roll.

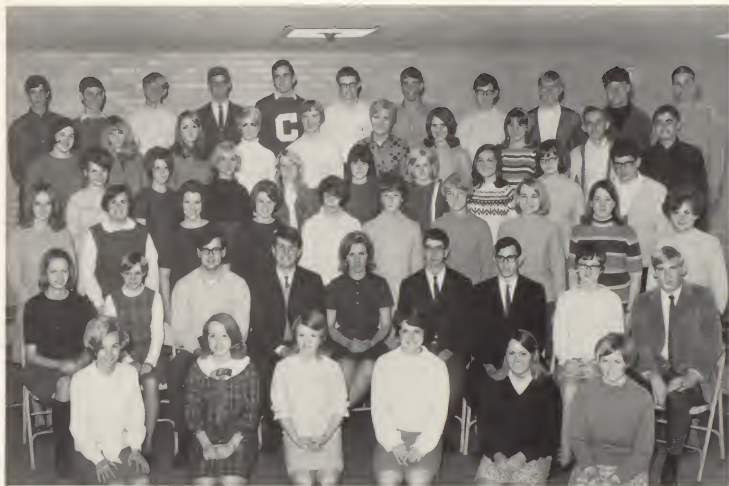

By the purchase of dark room equipment, student photographers were able to obtain on-the-scene action in contrast with previous posed shots. Quality improvements gave a more professional look to the paper.

Circulation and mailing methods were revamped for efficiency. Each Friday seventh hour, papers were placed in the subscribers' lockers. New bags with the symbolic ink blot dressed up the mailing.

Weekly interviews are taped so the required information will not be forgotten. Virginia Falkiner tapes Steve Meinhardt's views on his trip to London.

Yearbook staff rushes to meet deadlines

Pictures are second checked by editor-in-chief Jewell Everett under the critical eyes of adviser Miss Nancy Kaczmarek and copy editor Diane Veach.

Everyone on the Excalibur staff helps write copy. Production manager Pat Zakula and typist Debbie Wood use their spare time to discuss a possible caption.

Another sales promotion campaign for the Excalibur began by hanging psychedelic posters. This was the first visible sign of the work for the new book. Many major decisions had been made during the summer, but the staff first began to function as a team as the October deadline drew near.

Throughout the year as the pages were completed one by one, each word and picture was carefully selected to best represent the various student activities that composed the high school's program.

Staff positions were reorganized so that each section had a head editor. All material, after being completed, was then checked by members of the editorial board. An addition was also made to the staff in the form of a production manager, whose responsibility is to keep an accurate report of the progress made on each page.

Photographers were also selected for the staff. By adding dark room equipment, it was possible to use student talent. In a drastic contrast to previous years of professional photography, 50 percent of the photography in the book was amateur.

Striving for perfection, the staff found conventions in Chicago and Valparaiso as well as planning sessions in Hannibal, Missouri a great asset.

Copy writing proves a taxing job as sports editor Marilyn Money prepares her section for a deadline. Precision in count and meaning is imperative for good copy.

Championships were the order of the season for CPHS sports, and football was no exception. The 1967 gridders posted a 7-2 season, the best since an 8-2 record in 1958, and took Southern Division honors in the Calumet Conference.

The Bulldogs' opening victory came on a 9-0 blanking of Merrillville, the defending divisional champions. They gained a tie in the Southern Division by edging Lake Central and took undisputed possession the next week by downing Griffith. The Bulldogs closed their 1967 campaign with an 18-10 loss to Wirt in the playoff for the conference crown.

CPHS reserve gridders also chalked up an impressive record which indicates promise for future teams. Under the direction of Coach Don Kyes, the Bulldogs won five while losing only two.

Coach Dave Schaeffer was named Coach of the Year for the South Suburban League. Dave Blimm, John Carter, John Horst, Terry Patz, and Rich Roberts were named to the South Suburban All-Star team. Blimm, Carter, and Horst were honored on the All Lake County, Calumet Conference squad, and Carter was named Most Valuable Player in the South Suburban League.

Posting one of the best records in its history, the 1967 cross country team collected 14 dual meet wins against only 2 losses. In addition, they brought home titles in the conference, sectional and regional races and ended the season ranked tenth in the state.

Coach Malcolm Ruby's harriers dropped their season's opener to Hobart and a later bout with Calumet for their only defeats. They placed third in the Hobart and LaPorte Invitationals. After taking the conference crown by better than 20 points, they ran away with the sectional trophy by a margin of almost 30 points. The regional meet at LaPorte fell to the Bulldogs with the nearest competitor ten points behind.

Their tenth place ranking in the state came as a result of their performance in the state meet. The Bulldogs were one of the 12 elite teams out of 400 in the state that gained a position in the state race.

Warren Johnson and Mike Conquest were named to the all-conference cross country squad. Johnson, leading the harriers all season, placed first consistently and set a new school record of 9:45 for the two miles. Joe Kacmar led the team in total mileage, running up a total of 454 miles this past season.

Claiming its first conference championship, the 1967 tennis team posted a perfect season of eleven wins and no losses. Coach Michael Ross, in his second year as tennis mentor, led his team to the title in the infant Lake County Tennis Association. The association was comprised of teams from Munster, Griffith, Highland, Wirt, River Forest, and Crown Point.

Senior John Isley, who played in the first singles position for most of the season, posted a record of nine wins and one loss in singles play. He also won one doubles match and battled to a runner-up position in the conference singles competition with teammate Rick Armbrust. Armbrust, who was a mid-season addition to the team, scored one singles victory, six doubles wins and took the top spot in conference singles.

Steve Lett, junior, also compiled an undefeated season, winning ten singles and one doubles matches. Contributing toward the victories, he was undefeated in sets during the regular season play. Another singles man, junior Steve Gergley, scored seven wins and one loss in his play.

The doubles department was manned by the junior teams of Rick McFadden and Lee Wagner, and Greg Claussen and Tim Buche. These teams lost only one match apiece during the season.

regular season record

Continuing the winning ways of the fall athletic teams, the Crown Point varsity wrestling squad compiled an 11—2—1 record for the 1967-68 season under coach Carl Carnahan.

With the guidance of coach Russ Keller, the Bulldog reserves posted a winning season with a 6—5 mark. The wrestling future looks bright for Crown Point since most of the matmen who were instrumental in the team's fine record will be back next year.

The wrestlers got off to a roaring start as they defeated their first four opponents, but were dealt a stunning blow by the Portage Indians, 26—16.

After tying Highland 23—23, the crew rolled up six consecutive wins to create a Calumet Conference showdown with powerful Calumet.

The Calumet meet vanquished all C.P. hopes of being crowned CC wrestling kingpins, for the grapplers lost a close one, 22—19.

After a win over Hammond Clark, the "Big Red" copped 3rd place in the C.P. Sectional sending 120 lb. junior Rich Bohnen and heavy weight Ron Smith to the regionals.

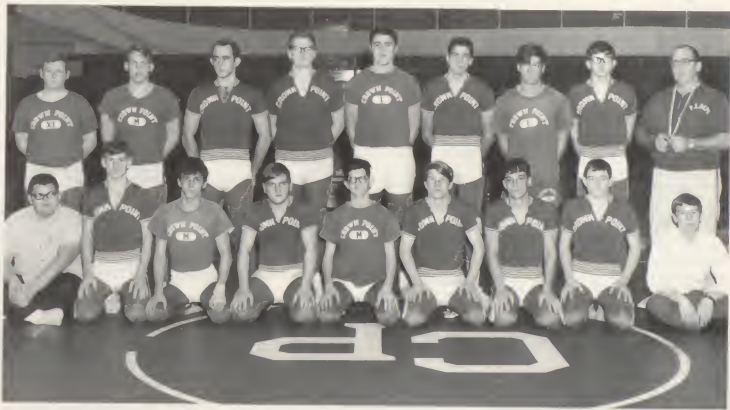

Bohnen with a 14—0 record, Smith with a 12—0—2 mark and 130 lb. senior Steve Greer with a 12—0 record all earned the honor of being named co-captains.

Hoopsters charge to victorious campaign

Four new records were established with the two team marks being a 74.0 scoring average and a .765 free throw percentage. Senior Joe Kacmar shot .882 from the charity line and junior sensation Dennis Gamauf scored 481 points for a new single season scoring record.

Long time nemesis Griffith fell to the Bulldogs as the Big Red defeated the Panthers three times but lost to Lowell twice, once in the championship game of the sectionals. The Bulldogs dropped nonconference battles to tenth ranked Bishop Noll, Gary Andrean, and powerful Valparaiso.

As a result of a player participating in a church game prior to the season, the 1967-68 Crown Point varsity cager crew had to forfeit four games that they had won easily. The school was notified of the infraction after the C.P. sectionals, thereby shattering the 17-6 record and the slice of the CC crown with Griffith and Lowell.

The Bulldog future looks rosy for mentor Harry Allison, since only two starters graduated, the JV squad under Coach Webb chalked up a 14-6 record, and the Taft freshman squad compiled a 20-0 record.

Returning gymnasts

Additional strength and encouragement was given to members of the gymnastics team this year by second year coach Mike Ross and first year assistant coach Jim Everroad as the team completed a season of seven wins and seven losses. With a large number of returning underclassmen, the team had depth.

After away wins at Elkhart and Hammond Clark, the team found its first defeat at the hands of Thornridge. The gymnasts lost the next three hard fought meets to Anderson Madison Heights, Rich Central, and Lincolnway.

Seniors Bill Bratten on the side horse and Larry Hittle on the rings and parallel bars led the pace with 12 and 21 firsts, respectively, as the CP gymnasts captured a third at the Concord Invitational.

With Bratten and Hittle leading the way, the squad scored wins over Hammond Clark, Hammond, and Jintown. However, Concord and Jintown turned out to be ungracious guests at two of the few home meets as they brought the team to defeat.

The crew bounced back, though, to repel Hillcrest and Hammond. They tuned up for the sectionals by meeting one of the best teams in the Midwest, Rich East of Illinois.

Hardballers capture

With only Chesterton to spoil the team's bid for a perfect conference record, the 1967 baseball season proved to be one of the best in Bulldog history. Coach Carl Carnahan's diamondmen posted a 13—4—1 record to capture the Calumet Conference crown. Chesterton edged past the Bulldogs in the last game of the season by a score of 2—1.

The season started with a non-conference loss to Merrillville and a 2—2 deadlock with Lowell. The Bulldogs got on the winning trail with wins over Noll, Highland and powerful Gary Wirt. After the streak was snapped by Hammond Clark, the diamondmen bounced back with 10 straight wins.

Highlighting the 1967 season were the pitching performances of senior Jack Pettit. Besides shut-outs against Lake Central and Merrillville, Pettit also fired no-hitters against Wirt and Portage.

The reserves, under the direction of Coach Richard Webb, posted a 10—1 season in preparation for next year.

Linksters lose once;

Swinging to a 21—1 season, the 1967 CPHS golf team chalked up their second consecutive conference championship. The Bulldog golfers were led by first year Coach Richard Wood and suffered their single loss in a non-conference meet.

In their 11 open meets, the Bulldogs swept past everyone except powerful Gary Andread. In conference play, the linksmen notched 11 straight wins to claim the conference trophy.

The Bulldogs stormed through the course in the Dyer Invitational to claim the first CPHS victory in that event. They copped first position in the sectional but settled for fourth in the regional.

Jim Alm led the 1967 golfers in medalist honors, shooting in the top spot five times. Keith Vickers and team captain Dave Simstad were medalists three times each. Alm seized the team's best average with 39.1 strokes per round. Vickers and Simstad averaged 40.0 and 40.4 respectively; and Tom Thompson posted a 41.2 stroke average for the year.

Trackmen race to

Under the direction of Coach Malcolm Ruby, the 1967 track team completed another outstanding season. Since several of the meets were run in temperatures less than 40 degrees, the 6—1 record of the cindermen was even more impressive.

First on the schedule was the Crown Point Invitational, held at the University of Chicago fieldhouse. The Bulldogs swept past Lowell and Griffith but bowed to Hobart. This defeat seemed to arouse the cindermen as they out-ran all their dual meet foes with the exception of conference champion Calumet.

In special competition, the Bulldogs notched a win in the Hobart Little Five. They copped second in the Rensselaer Relays and claimed fourth place in the Hammond Relays.

Four individual performances highlighted this successful year. Cole Viers bettered his own school broad jump record with a leap of 22'1/2". Emerging as conference champs in the two mile run and the 220 yard dash were Warren Johnson and John Carter. The only member of the track squad to qualify for the regionals was senior quarter miler Dave Schramm.

. . . deep and meaningful friendships in the abundance of not only student personalities but faculty as well. Social events gave the opportunity to demonstrate expressions of kindness and joy. Creative talents were shown in art, music, and other modes of habits.

Opinions were not held back in discussions of the Far East situation or other prevalent current events so demanding of thoughts. As the young minds developed each one sought identity in a set goal for his life.

Classtime was spent in the pursuit of knowledge that would provide a well rounded background for not only those going on to school but also those entering the world of business or the armed services.

Working for the administration in the main office and helping the faculty are secretaries Miss Pam Flemming, Mrs. Marie Olson, and Mrs. Vivian Spencer.

Taking a serious concern in the activities of faculty and students, Mr. Roger Childress moved into the position of principal in March of 1967. An added amount of work made it necessary for an assistant superintendent to Mr. Robert Brannock, which was filled by former principal Mr. Ray Rogers. He aided the superintendent and directed the function of the school board when Mr. Brannock was out of town.

Acquiring the office of assistant principal was Mr. Paul Georgas. Previously an art teacher, Mr. Georgas took an interest in students by advising the Student Council and assisting all students with any questions.

Counselors also aided students in analyzing test scores, re-scheduling classes and worked with students who needed scholastic guidance.

As director of our educational system throughout the entire year, Mr. Brannock, superintendent of city schools, answered questions, made out the finances, managed set policies with the school board and initiated new policies. He interviewed each prospective teacher and was in charge of administrative affairs of the school board.

Capable special staff necessary for effici

Director of attendance, Mr. Charles Lehner, checks the records of late or tardy students for accurate state attendance reports with his assistant Mr. William Naylor.

In order for the school personnel to complete appointed duties, special staffs were needed to see that everything worked smoothly and efficiently.

Mr. Charles Lehner, Director of Attendance, and his assistant, Mr. William Naylor, kept the attendance reports straight, made telephone calls to validate the absentee rolls, and kept accurate records of all transferred students.

Mrs. Rita McFadden, school nurse, administered first aid in the event of a sudden accident or illness, sponsored the Health Careers Club, and the Student Nurses of America, and took charge of the school insurance program. Mr. Alan Young, speech and hearing specialist, likewise served the school with sessions to help students correct their deficiencies.

Also benefiting the school, the cafeteria staff, under the direction of Mrs. Doris Sprout, served well-balanced hot meals available to 1,200 students.

The custodial staff had a busy work schedule in keeping the school and grounds in good condition. Besides keeping the halls and classrooms clean, they were in charge of seeing that all areas for sports were kept in top condition.

Desire for EXPRESSION

benefits area
merchants,
students
by providing . . .

. . . services and job opportunities for the area youth. Whether rushing into town to buy something special to wear on that big date, or just browsing around to pass the time, Crown Point High School students, found that the stores in town offered all the latest products.

In a gesture of Christmas spirit, the Chamber of Commerce provided free parking. Throughout the town merchants gradually joined in the trend of constructing awnings to protect citizens. This created a near shopping center atmosphere.

Teenagers found the facilities for recreation numerous. Two bowling lanes, a pool hall, and the new Seachers' Sellar provided enjoyment for students in leisure hours.

AN OPPORTUNITY TO SERVE

An opportunity to serve awaits industrious young men and women at Northern Indiana Public Service Company. As one of the top gas and electric distribution utilities in the United States, NIPSCO is constantly looking for new processes and methods of efficient operation. These include atomic power generation, extra high voltage transmission, underground electric distribution, computerized system planning, underground storage of natural gas, community analyses and electronic data processing.

Ready to grow with a growing company?

IN AN ATMOSPHERE OF GROWTH

NIPSCO is one of the highest-paying utilities in the State of Indiana. Its attractive employee benefit package—tuition refund plan, vacations, holidays, life insurance, comprehensive medical insurance, pensions, etc.—provides an atmosphere for individual growth. Fifteen leading colleges and universities are strategically located throughout its service area with others available in the greater Chicago area. Drop in. We'll be glad to talk jobs with you.

of his is true

High School is a waste of time . . .

*Just a waste of time
you are a real cut out about 1/2 of the guys be good and have fun*

. . . unless you find a job that turns you on and makes good use of your education. Inland Steel wants only people who want to use everything they've learned in high school--and strongly desire to grow personally and in their chosen field.

Inland's future growth depends on the creativity and productivity of its people. If you want a really challenging opportunity to contribute--with the rewards and responsibilities that go with it--Inland wants to talk to you.

We need action-seeking graduates for opportunities in clerical . . . production . . . technical . . . and craft apprenticeship areas.

Think it over. If you have high aspirations and a good high school record, take time to find out about a career with us.

Each person's desire for expression in life varies but the goal of eventual satisfaction remains unchanged.
